DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The exact structure of the claimed invention is not clearly defined.

In claim 1, the electrically conducting means between the first face and the second face of the support substrate is not seen in the drawings nor understood as to its structure and geometry.

What is the meaning of the "epitaxy support" as far as the structure of this transferred layer is concerned? What is the structure and geometry of the "epitaxied" material?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are further rejected, insofar as understood, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Assaderaghi et al (6,121,661) in view of Warick (6,515,332). Insofar as the inventive structure is understood, the reference to Assaderaghi appears to show the main structural elements including a semiconductor device formed on a support substrate and separated by an insulating layer, and where through contact structures are formed to penetrate an epitaxial layer, an insulating layer and the support substrate, as claimed. See, for example, the structure of FIG. 4a of this reference and the accompanying discussion.

Art Unit: 2815

The Warick reference also teaches a related structure, as seen, for example in FIG. 3, where a device is formed on multiple support layers and with a contact arrangement the connects an upper surface of the structure to a lower contact area beneath the support substrate.

Taken together, these references appear to teach all of the inventive features, insofar as they are understood, and one skilled in the art would be motivated to combine these references in order to achieve more compact metallization configurations.
